

Free Tutoring and Online Tools Help the School Transition

The military lifestyle can create unique questions when it comes to your child's education, but you are sure to find helpful, personalized advice through Military OneSource. Frustrated because your deployed spouse was the homework helper and now your child is struggling? Wondering if home school might be a better fit for your mobile lifestyle? Our consultants and online resources can answer these questions and more.

Online Homework Help:

Military kids may need to make up lost ground when they move to new schools or require a little help to prepare for major tests. Look no further than Military OneSource for practical help.

- Free online tutoring is available 24/7 through Tutor.com to eligible military families from the Department of Defense.
- Preparation for critical tests. Whether someone in your family is planning to take the SAT, ACT, DANTES tests, or the ASVAB, you can receive valuable test preparation at no cost through Peterson's DOD MWR Libraries Education Resource Center.

Our Online Library:

Even if you're stationed far from large English-language libraries, there are resources for you and your children online, no matter what your interests. With a simple sign-in at Military OneSource Online Library Resources, you can enter a virtual library that will bring you first-class resources in almost no time at all. Here are just a few choices:

- Student Resource Center Gold. Children in middle and high school will enjoy detailed history and culture articles. They can also check daily news updates from newspapers around the world.
- Info-Trac Junior Edition. More than 330 periodicals for students in junior high and high school are available.
- Kids Info-Bits. Designed for children in kindergarten through fifth grade, this site gathers information at a kid-friendly reading level.
- Culture Grams. This resource has a section just for children so they can study other countries and cultures, complete with maps and photographs.

Parenting And School Concerns:

A new school year can bring new parenting challenges. Find practical support in these Military OneSource selections:

- Parenting in the 21st Century. In this audio, you can learn how to help your children thrive in spite of today's hectic, technology-driven lifestyle. Edward Hallowell, bestselling author of Driven to Distraction, shares his research-based, practical tips.
- Home schooling. Discover questions to consider and read key guidance from experienced home-school families in these expertly prepared articles: Home Schooling Resources for Military Families and Is Home Schooling Right for Your Child?
- NetLibrary. This comprehensive library includes dozens of parenting books. Many deal with specific topics, like discipline, autism, and grief.

Military OneSource is available 24/7 to help you with a whole range of work and personal issues, including parenting. Call 1-800-342-9647 or check our Web site at www.MilitaryOneSource.com.